alone.

Impact (Write 3 to 4 sentences exploring the impact of this situation.

This was no nation gunning for peace; this was a country readying itself for battle. Though an assassination of Franz Ferdinand at Sarajevo may have been a spark, Germany had already put on the gloves for war. A bloody European conflict was coming, regardless.

Writing Hint: The Hammer paragraph works really well from paragraph three onwards in a longer piece of writing. Don't make it your first paragraph in a piece. You need to set the context first.

Conclusion

Sentence 1: Say your view

First: write a sentence saying the view that you took in your essay. Hint: look at what you said in sentence three in your introduction.

Sentence 2: Write a Mini Summary

Write a sentence that states in an interesting way, some of the information you discussed in your essay so far. Like a mini-summary of your key points.

Sentence 3: Say ONE THING that interested you the most.

Write a sentence stating one thing that you found really interesting from your whole essay. It might be something that you thought was your most important point. Or, some clever thought you had as you wrote.

Sentence 4: Sum Up

Finally, just sum up. Round off your essay with a single sentence.

You can end with a strong statement. It doesn't need to be a long sentence. With all the things that you have said in your essay so far, you have earned the right to do this.
